October Blues Fest Set for Daytona Ballpark

The 2010 Annual Daytona Blues Festival will be hosted the weekend before the official start of Biketoberfest in Florida's Blues capital, Daytona Beach. Organizers have booked a solid lineup of some of the hottest Blues artists from around the country.

The Festival will be held at the Jackie Robinson Ballpark near downtown Daytona Beach, featuring over 14 musicians and bands, each showcasing their own unique style of The Blues.

Festival organizer Dominic "Mickey" Benecasa says the October 8 – 10 weekend was selected because of its proximity to Biketoberfest and its moderate fall temperatures. "When you combine great fall Florida weather with the Best of the Blues you've got a great thing going on," he says. "We're billing it as 'The best in blues entertainment at the nicest time of the year'."

Three-day weekend passes for the event go on sale next week for $50, which includes a festival t-shirt for the first 500 buyers. VIP packages are $75 and include an early entrance of up to 1.5 hours before show time, access to an after-show party, merchandise discounts and a SWAG Bag. At the gate, weekend passes will cost $70 and daily passes will range from $25 to $35, depending on day. College students will get in for only $10 and kids under 10 are free. Group sale information can be obtained through Benecasa at dominic@annualdaytonabluesfestival.com. The Festival Web site is <http://annualdaytonabluesfestival.com>.
